CHILD LABOR IN THE SOUTH

Beautiful Example Set by Charlotte Typographical Union.
Interesting Local News.

In view of the fact that the Manufacturers' Association of America are strenuously endeavoring throughout the United States to establish an open shop system, which virtually means the annihilation of trades unions in this country, Mr. John M. Ryall, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council of this city, was asked to express his opinion as to the best means of defense for organized labor to combat the association. Mr. Ryall favors the demand by union men for the label on all products purchased by them, thereby clinching the fact that such products were made by union workmen.

Mr. Ryall says: "I consider the best weapon with which to fight the Manufacturers' Association is the union label, and since the question has been brought to my attention I consider it my duty as president of the Central body here to call the attention of every workman in the city to the importance of purchasing only union-made products. In doing this you uphold labor's dignity and bring prosperity to your community. The obligation to patronize union products should be one of the most solemn in all the labor movement."

Stick to the Label.

"The obligation adopted by the American Federation of Labor at Boston last winter, and endorsed by our State Federation, with regard to purchasing only strictly union-made products, should be rigidly adhered to by each union, and every man and woman that is dependant on this label for support should see to it that only articles bearing the label should be purchased. When you purchase an article that does not bear the label you consent to, and I might say ask for, a reduction in their wages. This year will test the strength, the wisdom and the devotion of those in the labor movement, not only of this country, but in Canada. There is a united movement in the United States to-day by the manufacturers to destroy the labor movement, and the first stroke is at the label. Thirty manufacturers of ready-made clothing in New York refused to put the label on the Garment Makers' Union on their products. I merely mention this industry as one of the many. The shoe-makers have done the same thing with a great extent. Down through every trade and calling those who do not insist on the label are responsible for the conditions that exist to-day. The working people purchase nearly all the ready-made clothing that is manufactured, all the ready-made shoes, ninety per cent. of the cigars and tobacco of all the brands manufactured in the United States. Only 10 per cent. bears the union label, while the other 90 per cent. is the product of non-union labor. Who is responsible for this condition of affairs? The consumers are members of organized labor. If we would live up to our obligation and our organization the state of affairs would be reversed and instead of 90 per cent. of the manufacturers' goods being non-union they would be union-made and bear the union label. This lack of duty on the part of organized labor is deplorable, and we are responsible for the un-and our members are proud of her, and the coins jingle right merrily when at union meetings the hat is passed for voluntary contributions for Sadie. Sadie is now growing into young womanhood, and promises to be a useful and noble young lady. Our union is so well satisfied with its experiment that, if matters continue favorable and "work is good," our little girl will receive a college education. This action of the union has caused much favorable comment and made friends for us here by the score. Any union that is thinking of adopting a daughter can do itself no injury in taking such a step.

organized condition of the wage worker to-day, for there is not a manufacturer of non-union-made goods that would not unlearn his establishment if organized labor would only do its duty and purchase only strictly union-made goods. It is a duty that we owe to those who employ union labor. They are entitled to and should receive our united support in the fight that they are making against this association.

"Finally, organized labor must insist on the union label. It is the wage-worker's trade mark; by it we know that the goods are the product of union men and women, who have bonded themselves together for the purpose of bettering their condition, and therefore it is the duty of every man and woman throughout the land to purchase only articles that bear the union label, and then we will wield the weapon that the Manufacturers' Association are most afraid of, and in the end victory will perch on our banner."

A Beautiful Example.

The following little story, taken from the Typographical Journal for May, will be read with interest by all classes of laboring men and women throughout the South, in which section so many children are employed in cotton mills and factories, and grow up in ignorance, and where, too, organized labor has made such determined fights for the enactment of laws prohibiting child labor in mills and factories.

In the summer and fall of 1902 there was great interest manifested in labor circles in some parts of North Carolina in regard to the enactment by the State Legislature of a law to prohibit the employment of child labor in cotton mills. It was the unanimous opinion of labor union people that such a law should be enacted, but where to fix the age limit caused some division. Naturally the discussion interested the membership of Charlotte Typographical Union No. 338, and as a result of the debates along that line our union decided to select from the mill-children every two weeks, and in addition, her clothing, school books and other necessities are furnished her. Our little girl was an apt pupil from the beginning, although she did not know the alphabet when she left the mill. She mastered the studies of the first grade during her first session and was promoted to the third grade, having learned so rapidly as to be able to skip the second grade altogether. Her teachers have no words but of praise for our protege, ing his wife's parents. Mr. Fulton says that Huntington is a thoroughly organized city, and that the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineers include in its membership every man running to the place. Mr. Fulton left for his home on Thursday, accompanied by his wife.

Retail Clerks' Smoker.

The Retail Clerks' Union gave a smoker to its members on last Thursday night in Pickett Camp Hall. The routine work of the body was hurriedly transacted, after which the union resolved itself into a social session and an evening of much enjoyment was spent. President Ryall and Secretary Muller, of the Central Trade and Labor Council, delivered timely and instructive addresses on unionism.

Labor Notes of Interest.

Mr. R. F. McComack and Mr. R. O. Ross were elected delegates on May 18th, to represent Atlanta Typographical Union No. 45, in the St. Louis Convention in August.

The official journal of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America devotes two pages with a half-tone cut in their May issue eulogizing their deceased General Secretary-Treasurer, Mitchell P. Carrick, who died in Lafayette, Ind., on May 8th. Mr. Carrick was born in County Limerick, Ireland, but on attaining his majority he emigrated for America and took up the painter's trade. He was instrumental in the organization of the International Brotherhood. He held every office within the gift of his craft, and had been the General Secretary-Treasurer since 1900. Nearly every local in the United States has passed resolutions of respect to the memory of their champion of organized labor.
